To test the hypothesis that our deaf sample would display higher levels of social competence than the deaf norms on the SEAI, we examined the proportion of children in our sample who performed in the “above average” range (80th percentile or greater)—see Table 3. Our deaf sample scored in the above average range on two of the three SEAI scales we targeted: Social Communicative Behaviors (37.7% vs. expected 20%) and the Anxious, Compulsive Behaviors (48.9% vs. expected 20%).

Social Competence of Deaf and Hard-of-Hearing Children ...

Abstract. Increasing numbers of deaf students receive most of their education in general education classrooms. These students may not have easy access to peers and adults with whom they can communicate; consequently professionals have expressed fears that these students will be socially isolated and lack opportunities to develop the social competence necessary for success.
